THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL-WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1861.

Gay, tearris, the mailtany days in FRANCE, the Tenacco and Whisky Airs in FRANCE, Entropy Appears in an edge of the N.O. Picayune.] letin a few days ago, the Judge Rost is well salisfied is proclaimed that out staken of the course of American camp, are cursing the the English and French governboard for their pusitions Palmerston, Lord John Russell, ence to tobacc. Thousand and Count Walewski have that the R quainted him that these governments will Had the Beknowledge the Confederate States as soon the mills sovereignity—as soon as they exhibit to the world that they are de faclo capable of defending their rights, and they say the rule of acknowledging all governments de facto will be interpreted largely in favor of the Confederate States; it being a fundamental principle of republics that the people have an inalianable right to modify their form of government at pleasure, and there being no dynastic reacons for withholding a recognition of sovereign States which possess a republican form of

All the diplomatic agents of the French government in the United States assure the minister of foreign affairs Mr. Lincolo is waging a hopeless war. They all concur in expressing the opinion the Union can never be reconstructed, and that the North is every day widening the breach and wasting blood and treasure wantonly and out of mere spite. They say the North dreamed the South could not be kicked out of the Union, and the North is furione to find not only the South determined to leave the Union, but to keep out of the Union, and that the loss of the South is a heavier loss than any man at the North reckoned. Mons. de Russell, a talented officer of the French navy, (the same who was sont to Abvesinia) just returned from the United States whither he was sent by the government, and he concurs in the views above expressed. Confederate citizens are a lowed to travel through France without the vice of their passport by the federal consuls. Citizens of the United States are required to have their pass. Mr. Greeley's inreats of withdrawing the on, Morrill, Wade, Anthony, Kennedy and ports gived by their consulsexequatur f om French consuls in Confederate | Powell. orts has produced some irritation bers. The would see the whole diplomatic and consular and Nesmith. corps of the United States swept out of France. and a formidable fleet leave Brest, Toulon and Cherbourg to end the blockeds Mr. Lincoln has proclaimed. The North is unlacky in its statesmen. The speeches delivered by Mr. Clay and his accompliers-Mr. Seward's insolent dispatch to Mr Dayton-Mr. Greeley's threats-and Mr. Seward's speeches in favor of annexing Canada, have done yes men's service to the Confederate States. Th Monitone (which is, as you know, the organ the French government,) says: "The most important news from America to the increasing astevolent feeling against England which exists in the North, because England refuses to treat the South as rebels. Although President Ruchsonn declared in his message that to altempt to subdue the Confederate States was an undertaking in opposition to all the principles of the federal government. This ill humor appears not only in articles of insure violence (use violence folls) from the pen of newspaper editors, but also in private letters. ... And after mentioning the expedition of military forces to Canada, the Moniteur goes o to say: "The North, separated from the South and from the impense terri tories belonging to it, ay be inclined to seek compensation and to re-establish the balance by absorbing Canada in the United States. This is one of the northern schemes, and Euglish statesmen cannot forget that its avowed advocate is a personage who is none other than Monaieur Seward." So you see that as "Monalour? Seward's speeches against the South did more than anything else to bring about disunion, so they are exer ing a powerful loftuence on England to turn England with the South. I again call your attention to the core with granting satisfaction at release. which the Moniteur continues to avoid the use of the words "United States," It looks upon the United States as an obsolete expression. The French government has issued a proclamation exactly identical with the queen's proc-lamation of neutrality. It proclaims: "H. M. the Emperor of the French, taking into conists between France and the United States of America, has determined to maintain a strict neutrality in the contest begun between the government of the Union and the States which protend to form a separate confederation (was confederation particuliere)". And it goes on to declare that no ship-of-war or privateer of either of the belliserests will be allowed to remain with their prizes in any French port or roadstead more than 24 hours, or to sell any portion of their prizes in the said por a. All French subjects are likewise forbidden to enter the service of either the believerents in any capacity whatever, or to do anything which might be considered an act of hostility, and it is further declared that all Frenchmen, whether in France or elsewhere, who act centrary to these prescriptions shall have no claim to the protection of the French government against any measures which the belligerents may think proper to apply. This proclamation, as you see, recognizes North and South on the same foot ofequality-it recognizes them both as belief erent-it recognizes the right of the Confederate Government to issue letters of marque

This week or next week the French government will recognize the independence of Italy, which will be an advantage to us, for as long things in Italy it will be averse from recogpixing the Confederate States; both being erestures of the same God, rox populs. As soon as Italy is recognized our independence will be recognized. Powerful causes are at work to bring about this consummation. At the mo ment I write we are expecting to hear of riots at Lyons and Saint Etienne, the silk and ribworking classes there, in consequence of the brigand Montgomery to high military so-Sates, has reacted a point which is sitions by the well unbearable. I put these two passages together that you may see the ten-dency of England and France. The Debute declares the English government leans to the South, while the Monileur declares the French ment still more conciliatory, I have forgotten to tell you that M.
